The Chronicles of Concord

For about the first five years of the school, I wrote an article each month commenting on the historical developments here at school. Public School Academies or Charter Schools as they are known, were in their infancy and we all had a great deal to learn about this new and exciting reform movement in education. In addition to recounting our story it enabled me to communicate to each family the things that we consider important and that we were trying to accomplish here. Sharing what was on my heart and sharing an aspect of the charter school world was a means of helping to define us and to sharpen our understanding of the sum and substance of what Concord Academy-Boyne was all about.

Because many families have joined us since those early years, I have decided to reinstate my article in the newsletter which I've titled "The Chronicles of Concord". I am including the first issue in this weeks Compass. I consider myself fortunate to be involved in the nurturing and training of children and I hope that my articles will be both informational and encouraging to you.

In your service,

Lawrence Kubovchick
